Nat'áanii Conference

Oct 14, 2016

I am a university administrator and faculty member dedicated to creating greater access and opportunity for historically underrepresented students and professionals in educational spaces. My experience and expertise in and out of the classroom has been working with students from a variety of underrepresented backgrounds: students of color, first-generation, low-SES, English Language Learner, refugee, LGBTQ, religious minority, urban artists. I seek to affect change at both the macro (institutional and policy) level as well as the micro (classroom and one-on-one) level. My approach is rooted in the assumption that students from marginalized backgrounds have rich histories and stories that need to be heard, validated, and
