The Heartbeat of Mother Earth, making drums and songs to celebrate life.

Utah Division of Arts & Museums

The heartbeat of our mother is the first thing we hear as a fetus in the womb; this rhythmic sound is familiar to Native American people. We celebrate the gift of life when we gather; we hear the sound and feel the vibration of the drumming, singing, and dancing round dance songs. We gather the supplies needed to make a drum and drumsticks from the trees that grow on our land, hides, and sinew from the animals we hunt.

This art form needs to be taught to our youth.

We have only 10 slots available
